

LUDWIG-
MAXIMILIANS-
UNIVERSITÄT
MÜNCHEN

DOCTORAL PROGRAM IN BUDDHIST STUDIES

PhD-scholarships 2022 (DAAD Graduate School Scholarships Program (GSSP))

The Doctoral Program in Buddhist Studies at the Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität in Munich, Germany offers two PhD scholarships for dissertation projects related to Buddhism.

Deadline for applications: October 25th, 2022

Start of scholarship: Spring 2023

Duration of scholarship: max. four years¹

Scholarship amount: € 1,200 per month + travel allowance + insurance² + € 230-460 per year (research allowance) + lump sums for travel + € 1,000 per year³ + preparatory German language course⁴.
Under certain circumstances additionally family allowance⁵ + support for rent⁶ + subsidy for additional costs resulting from a disability or chronic illness that are not covered by other funding providers.

Scholarship donor: German Academic Exchange Service (DAAD)

The Doctoral Program in Buddhist Studies at the Ludwig-Maximilian-Universität in Munich is based on a cooperation between Asian Studies (Indology, Japanology, Sinology, Tibetology), Study of Religion, and Philosophy of Religion and promotes and supervises PhD theses related to Buddhism within a broad range of subjects and disciplines. To strengthen the disciplinary and communicative skills of the doctoral students, the research-oriented study program is complemented by workshops and teaching placements as well as by transferable skills training. Intensive supervision by mentoring teams helps students to accomplish doctoral projects at the highest level. In addition, the integration of the doctoral candidates into interdisciplinary and international networks promotes their professional development as young scholars.

¹ The DAAD grants the scholarship for one-year periods. If the PhD project makes progress, the scholarship can be extended three times, up to a total period of funding for four years.

² The DAAD offers combined insurance that comprises health insurance, accident insurance, and personal liability insurance.

³ A material resource and supervision allowance of currently € 1,000 per year, which is paid upon application to the host institution.

⁴ If available, applicable and feasible, taking into account the starting date of the scholarship. The courses last for 2 to 6 months.

⁵ A monthly allowance for accompanying family members – about € 200 child allowance per child and about € 275 marriage allowance.

⁶ The DAAD can offer a rent subsidy, depending on the actual rent paid by the PhD student, usually between € 50-125 per month.

The doctoral program is launching two scholarships for excellent PhD projects related to Buddhism for four years beginning in spring 2023. The scholarships are provided by the DAAD (German Academic Exchange Service).

The selection process comprises two stages: Applications are sent to the Doctoral Program in Buddhist Studies in Munich. The program will select promising candidates, who then have to submit their materials to the DAAD. Subsequently, the DAAD decides upon the successful candidates. It is expected that the successful candidates will be chosen and informed by March 2023.

The prerequisites for application are non-German citizenship, a Master of Arts or Magister Artium degree or equivalent in a relevant field, excellent knowledge of at least one Buddhist source language, outstanding qualifications in the subject, and fluency in English. A basic knowledge of German is also desirable, though not a prerequisite, but depending on the dissertation project willingness to learn German/improve German language skills will be expected. Applicants must not have lived in Germany for more than 15 months at the time of the submission of their materials to the DAAD, which will most probably take place in December, and the last final exam (Master Degree) must have taken place no longer than six years before this date. In addition, applicants must not have completed a PhD previously, and at the starting date of the scholarship/preparatory German course, applicants must have completed their master's degree or equivalent.

Depending on the degree of previous knowledge of German and the dissertation project, a 2-4 month intensive German language course might be necessary before the start of the 4-year scholarship.

Research stays abroad for field work are possible, but their total duration must not exceed 25% of the duration of the scholarship, and they cannot start immediately at the beginning of the intended scholarship period.

Please apply using our online application tool:

<https://www.portal.graduatecenter.uni-muenchen.de/ocgc/buddstud>

After you have registered, you will be asked to submit the following documents:

1. Full curriculum vitae
2. A letter of motivation that demonstrates your acquaintance with our program and your qualification in the subject.
3. An outline of the planned dissertation project including a schedule (max. 2,700 words)
4. A short schedule/ working plan of your planned research stays/field trips abroad (when, where, what, how long), if applicable

5. A digital version of your M.A. thesis
6. Contact details of two university professors from your home university, who are willing to write a report about you. Once you have filled in the information about these professors (referees) and saved it, they will receive an email from the application portal asking them to write a report about you and to upload it onto the portal until October 25th.
7. Certificates:
 - a . School leaving certificate qualifying you for admission to higher education in your own country
 - b . Certificates of annual examinations taken at the home university (transcripts of records) (including an explanation of the grading system)
 - c . Bachelor and Master degree certificates⁷ showing grades and explaining the grading system (description of grade scale).

The essential parts of all university certificates and diplomas in languages other than German or English should be translated. Certified copies of all translated documents must be submitted to DAAD only after a letter of award has been received.

8. Document certifying fluency in English or German.
9. Document certifying excellent knowledge of at least one Buddhist source language.
10. (Optional) Documents relating to periods of practical training, if applicable.
11. List of publications, if any.

Please make sure to submit all documents mentioned in this list before the deadline.

The documents can be submitted in either English or German.

If you have any questions concerning our program or with regard to the scholarship, please do not hesitate to contact us at: buddhist-studies@lrz.uni-muenchen.de

⁷ For French-speaking countries: License or Maitrise with Assez-Bien along with a DEA/DESS degree or a Master's degree according to the LMD system.